

Hi there,

A robotic startup's superpower is giving its customers the ability to focus on growing their business instead of maintaining robots. Rapid Robotics has thrived by creating end-to-end robotic automation solutions for manufacturers, but they recently needed a solution of their own.

With customers waiting and a launch date looming, Rapid Robotics realized trying to develop hardware and software at the same time was too time-consuming and expensive. See how Movelt Pro came in to save the day, along with saving them a year's worth of development time.
